MGMT 6901: Rural Entrepreneurship and Development

Traditional economic development strategies have failed to address the specific needs of rural communities and small towns. The ecosystems, social networks and information flows are very unique in these regions. Important aspects of economic development in rural communities and small towns include small business resiliency and entrepreneurship. Entrepreneurship remains an integral component of economic and community development. This course will bring together content, theory, and experiences to form a holistic view of community development to improve resiliency and local sustainability through the lens of small business development. There will be a combination of reviewing and discussing academic articles, networking with local business and economic development specialists, and applied work in communities where students have an interest.

MKTG6652 Digital Marketing: At the heart of marketing lie the consumer and their marketing journey through the stages of awareness, intent, conversion, and finally retention. In this course, we will learn how digital has revolutionized the interactions between firms and consumers along this journey. The course is designed to provide you a theoretical understanding of the Internet marketplace necessary to adapt to its many changes, while also equipping you with the skills you will need to perform vital daily functions.
