FINA 6874 Financial Markets & Institutions: The primary objective consists of gaining a detailed understanding of major financial markets and institutions U. S. and international environments. Significant objectives include identification and study of major market participants. Further objectives include sharpening the ability to realize the practical usage of critical concepts: financial intermediation; securitization; interest rate structures; financial market models and instruments; and financial risk management. The primary method of formalizing the connections between theory and practice is the use of individual projects, working in groups, simulation projects, group presentations, and/or research papers.
